"Well, Mr- Baggs, in connection with the other rumor, I heard that you had abandoned the West Wheeling terminal point of your road, as impracticable, that the confluence of the river and back river had created a sand bar, which rendered towing impossible, and made the Island measure absolutely necessary. Is this so?"

"We have abandoned nothing we have undertaken. We are steadily pushing our road to completion at West Wheeling. The water is very deep there and admirably adapted to towing purposes, and, for the present at least, that will be our eastern terminus."

"Well do you think there is any propect of the Island project taking tangible shape soon?"

"No, sir. We have consumed our pile in the construction of our road so far, and the men in this road will not do anything until they see their way out. We have rented Seamon's wharf boat, at the foot of Eleventh street, in Wheeling, and on Monday will begin to receive and ship freight either by the package or car load, and also to deliver it in any quantity. I have appointed Mr. F. A. Mayberry, sgent at Wheeling, who will attend to the business, and to summarize," said Mr. Baggs, "our track is in good condition; we hve nineteen engines, plenty of freight cars, and to-day sent out five new coaches made by the Jackson & Sharp Company, at Wilmington, Del., besides two new baggage cars, and are doing a good local business, which is all we have attempted yet. As good an indication of the condition of our road as I can give you is we brought thirty-four cars of ore over the road to-day, in one train. This ore was shipped to Ironton, O., to the Bellfante furnace."

econd Shooting Match at Washington Pa., Yesterday—Wheeling Again Wins-Magnificent Score of Prof. Dwight.

The team from the Wheeling Rifle Club went to Washington yesterday, to shoot a return match with the club of that place. The first match between these teams was shot by telegraph on the 8th inst, each club shooting on its own range In this contest the home club scored 290 out of a possible 300, Mr. Dwight making twenty consecutive bulls' eyes.

A few sighting shots were fired when the match was opened at 11 o'clock by Mr. Hazlett.

After six shots had been fired by esch of the shooters, a severe storm of wind, rain and hail came up, chasing every one off the grounds. A friendly covered bridge afforded shelter, and the opportunity was taken to devour the welcome lunch spread by the hospitable Washingtonians.

When the shower had passed the teams resumed shooting, and continued without interruption until about 4 o'clock.

indebtedness of the works we have paid for the Ritchletown and Island extensions; the works have been improved to such an extent that they might really be called new. All this has been paid for out of the revenue of the works, while we have gradually been reducing the original debt from year to year."

"Have you any idea of the cost of the extensions you just spoke of?"

"I have not of the Ritchletown extension. When it was decided to make the Island extension, Council passed an ordinance zuthorizing the city to issue $40 000 in bond; for the improvement. The bonds were never issued, as the Commissioners thought they would be able to complete the work without their issuance. We borrowed $20,000, and paid the debt and the balance of the cost of the extension out of the revenues of the works. I suppose the Island extension cost about $40,000.

"Now that the debt on the works has been, or will be, liquidated, what will be the policy of the trustees?"

Well, the capacity of the works must be increased. The present capacity of the works will not supply the demand next winter. The extensions of mains have been quite liberal, and the list of consumers is being increased daily."

"What is the cost of the improvements proposed?"

"About $50,000."

"Are these improvements actually nec-

"They are. Of course it will be for Council to say whether they shall be made or not, but I don't think there will be any trouble in impressing the importance of the enlargement of the works upon What are the revenues of the works?

"What are the revenues of the works?"

"Well, as near as I can approximate, about $72,000 a year, which, after deducting expenses would leave a net revenue of probably $50,000."

"Will the liquidation of the debt have any effect upon the price of gas?"

"No, I think not. The people seem to be satisfied with the present rats."

"When will the improvements you speak of be made?"

"This fall. The capacity of the works must be increased before they will be able to meet the consumptive demand this winter."

This will make the Court room much more convenient and materially aid its acoustic properties. The space thus cut off from the western end of the Court room will be sufficient for four large rooms, two on the first floor and two on the second, which can be thus utilized: The one adjoining the library can be used as a jury room; the library and the room occupied by Judge Melvin can be converted into a room for the Board of Commissioners, and used also as a County Court room, when necessary.

The room then created by the new wall adjoining the room now used by the Board of Commissioners, will be a jury room, while the room now occupied by the Board of Commissioners will be used as Judge Melvin's room, while the one now occupied by the Board of Commissioners will be used as Judge Melvin's room, while the one now occupied by the Board of Commissioners will be used as Judge Boyd's office, and opposite to this room on the north, will be an additional room for the Clerk of the County Court, which is badly needed.
